1. How to Use This Manual

This manual is for the teacher of M/J United States History: 1492 to Reconstruction, Spring semester (Grade 7, Florida course 2100010). It collects what a teacher needs in one place: the course structure, a week-by-week guide, every answer key, the rubrics, and the standards crosswalk that shows which lessons and assessments address which benchmark.

Everything here is teacher-facing. Benchmark codes, answer keys, and the notes on how items are scored never appear on student pages. The Live and On-Demand sections use the same content; only logistics differ (see Section 14).

Students see the course as eight modules (the Founding Era, then Modules 1 to 7) with module-based lesson IDs (F.1 to 7.4). The 18 build-calendar weeks (Weeks 19 to 36, continuing from the first semester) appear in this manual only as a scheduling aid and as the grain at which assessments are written.

2. Course Overview

Course	M/J United States History, 1492 through the end of Reconstruction (second half of the full-year course)
Grade / code	Grade 7; Florida CPALMS 2100010
This semester	Quarter 3 (Weeks 19 to 27), “A Republic Divides Over What It Is Building,” and Quarter 4 (Weeks 28 to 36), “Compromise Fails and the Union Is Tested.” Thirty-six lessons, two per week.
Semester question	Can a free republic hold together a nation half slave and half free, and what did it cost when it could not?

Throughlines	(1) Washington's warning against party spirit and sectional division, which every compromise tests. (2) "Who decides?" (the Court, the states, Congress, the people), which each lesson hands to the next. The semester climaxes in the Civil War.
Approach	Contingency first: every week surfaces at least one moment when history could plausibly have gone otherwise. Classical Republican evaluation and Great Men and Great Events as the narrative spine; ideas and material conditions are used without becoming deterministic. See Section 15.
Platform	Canvas, with lesson and primary-source pages hosted as standalone web pages and embedded in Canvas. Graded items (quizzes, written assignments, discussions, capstones, exams) are Canvas-native.

3. Module and Week Schedule

Modules are not equal in length. Weeks 24, 26, and 28 each split their two lessons across two modules; in those weeks the week's assessments sit in the module of the second lesson.

Module	Lesson IDs	Build-calendar weeks	Quarter
Founding Era: The Republic Learns to Disagree	F.1-F.4	19-20	Q3
Module 1: The New Republic Competes on the Continent	1.1-1.4	21-22	Q3
Module 2: The North Pursues Innovation and Progress	2.1-2.3	23-24 (first lesson)	Q3
Module 3: The South Embraces Hierarchy and Tradition	3.1-3.4	24 (second lesson)-26 (first lesson)	Q3
Module 4: North and South Practice Compromise	4.1-4.4	26 (second lesson)-28 (first lesson)	Q3 and Q4
Module 5: North and South Reject Compromise and Face Crisis	5.1-5.5	28 (second lesson)-30	Q4
Module 6: The American Civil War	6.1-6.8	31-34	Q4
Module 7: Reconstruction	7.1-7.4	35-36	Q4

Module 4 spans both quarters: lessons 4.1 to 4.3 are in Quarter 3 and lesson 4.4 is in Quarter 4. The Quarter 3 exam and Capstone close out Module 4; the Quarter 4 exam and Capstone close out Module 7.

4. Lesson Pages and Student Supports

- Lessons. Each is a standalone page of 790 to 870 words with a header strip, objectives, a glossary of subject vocabulary where new terms appear, and a "What You'll Do Next" section that names the week's assessments. Benchmark codes sit in an HTML comment banner at the top of each lesson page (teacher view only).

- Listen player. Every lesson page and every primary-source page carries a Listen / Stop control with a speed setting, which reads the page aloud using the student's browser voice.
- Glossary pronunciation. Each glossary entry on a lesson page has a speaker button that says the term aloud. Foreign-language terms are glossed inline in bold with the original in italic parentheses.
- Primary-source pages. Two per week, plain text with the excerpt quoted from a named web transcription. Edits to any excerpt are logged in the page's HTML comment.
- Voice and browser notes. Audio depends on the browser's built-in voices. If a student has no sound, check the device volume and try Edge or Chrome.

5. The Weekly Assessment Pattern

Each build-calendar week carries the same sequence, placed inside the module that holds the week's lessons:

Item	Canvas type	Points	What it is
Intro wrapper	Survey quiz, ungraded	0	Three questions: the week's essential question in the student's own words, an objectives check, and the quarter's optional group-capstone opt-in.
Reading Quiz	Quiz	7	Seven multiple-choice questions covering both lessons. Each requires inference across facts rather than lookup. Two attempts allowed; the higher score counts.
Critical Questions	Assignment	10	Two open-ended questions on Primary Source 1.
Primary Source Exercise or Report	Assignment	10 or 16	Two open-ended questions on Primary Source 2. On the seven Report weeks (20, 24, 26, 29, 33, 35, 36) the response is 250 to 400 words, submitted as a Word file, and scored with the shared 16-point rubric.
Discussion	Discussion	10	Students defend one specific claim, then respond to a classmate.
Outro wrapper	Survey quiz, ungraded	0	Four questions: the essential question revisited, a confidence rating, an unclear-concept question, and a virtue reflection.

Scoring default. Weekly written items (Critical Questions, Exercises, Discussions) are scored for completion and substance rather than item-by-item correctness. Reports use the rubric. This keeps the grading load workable at class sizes the course is built for.

Question types. The two questions in each primary-source block rotate among four reasoning types (counterfactual, causation, concept, significance). The type is never shown to students. The two-question cap does not apply to Capstones or exams.

The course map's featured-assignment column (Reading Quiz, Primary Source Report, or VR Activity) is retained in the map, but every week carries the full weekly set above. VR Activities are not yet built (Section 13).

7. Answer Keys: Weekly Reading Quizzes

One point per question. Correct answer positions were balanced across a, b, c, and d. The stem and the correct choice are shown so the key can be checked at a glance.

Week 19: Reading Quiz: Lessons F.1 and F.2

1. Virginia had already paid most of its war debts by 1790. Based on this, which reaction to Hamilton's assumption plan would you expect from many Virginians?
   c) They would object, because their state would help pay other states' debts.
2. In 1794, farmers in western Pennsylvania attacked tax collectors. Which fact about their lives best explains why the whiskey tax hurt them more than most Americans?
   a) Hauling grain over the mountains cost too much, so they turned it into whiskey, which they also used like money.
3. Hamilton admitted the Constitution never mentions a national bank, yet he said Congress could create one. Which idea did his argument depend on?
   d) Congress may use powers not listed if they help carry out powers that are listed.
4. In 1793, a merchant whose business depended on trade with Britain would most likely have supported which group, and why?
   b) Federalists, because Hamilton and his friends favored Britain, the nation's biggest trading partner.
5. Jefferson and Madison believed the Sedition Act broke the Constitution, but they did not take the question to the Supreme Court. What was the best reason?
   d) The Court was full of Federalists, so they expected it to side with the law.
6. Which person would have been most likely to be charged under the Sedition Act of 1798?
   a) A Republican newspaper editor who wrote harsh attacks on President Adams.
7. The fight over the Bank (Lesson F.1) and the fight over the Sedition Act (Lesson F.2) were different disputes. What question lay underneath both of them?
   c) How much power the Constitution really gives the federal government.

Week 20: Reading Quiz: Lessons F.3 and F.4

1. In the election of 1800 the Republicans clearly wanted Jefferson to be President, yet Jefferson and Burr tied with 73 votes each. What caused the tie?
   b) Electors cast two votes with no separate vote for Vice President, and every Republican elector voted for both men.
2. Hamilton disliked Jefferson's ideas, yet he urged Federalists in the House to support Jefferson over Burr. Which reason best explains his choice?
   d) He thought Burr had no principles and put the safety of the republic ahead of his party.
3. The three-fifths compromise was a formula for dividing up House seats and taxes among the states. How did it matter to the election of 1800?
   a) It added seats and electors to the slaveholding states, which may have helped Jefferson defeat Adams.
4. In Marbury v. Madison, Marbury did not get his commission, yet people say Marshall won the larger fight. Why?
   c) He gave up a small power but claimed judicial review, the power to say a law is unconstitutional.
5. Jefferson did not like the way Marshall's Court claimed the final word on the Constitution. Which belief would Jefferson most likely have held?
   b) Each branch of government, not just the Court, can judge what the Constitution allows.
6. Maryland tried to tax the Baltimore branch of the Bank of the United States. Using Marshall's reasoning in McCulloch v. Maryland, why would that tax fail?
   d) The power to tax can become the power to destroy, and federal law is supreme over state law.
7. A merchant in 1824 wants to ship goods by steamboat from New Jersey to New York. Which result of Gibbons v. Ogden helps the merchant most?
   c) Congress controls trade between the states, so one set of federal rules replaces many state rules.

Week 21: Reading Quiz: Lessons 1.1 and 1.2

1. Napoleon first wanted Louisiana as a supply base for a sugar colony, yet in 1803 he offered to sell all of it. Which explanation fits the facts best?
   a) The revolution in Saint-Domingue defeated his army, so Louisiana had little value to him, and he needed money for war against Britain.
2. Jefferson worried about whether buying Louisiana was allowed. Which of his earlier beliefs explains that worry?
   d) He believed the federal government could use only the powers the Constitution lists.
3. The Embargo Act of 1807 failed to change British or French behavior. Which fact best explains why?
   b) Britain and France found other places to buy goods, while American sailors, merchants, and farmers bore the cost.
4. Which conclusion about the Lewis and Clark expedition does the lesson best support?
   c) It depended on Native nations for food, horses, and directions, and on people like Sacagawea.
5. How did the War of 1812 change the position of Native nations in the Northwest?
   c) They lost Tecumseh and British help, and settlers moved in faster than before.

6. Spain gave Florida to the United States in the Adams-Onis Treaty of 1819. Which event most clearly showed that Spain could not defend Florida?
   d) Jackson's 1818 invasion, when he seized Spanish forts.
7. The Monroe Doctrine was a bold claim from a country that could not enforce it. What really stood behind it?
   b) The British navy, because Britain wanted free trade in the Americas and did not want other empires there.

Week 22: Reading Quiz: Lessons 1.3 and 1.4

1. Clay said his American System would help every region, yet many Southerners opposed the protective tariff. Which fact best explains their view?
   c) Planters sold cotton to Britain and bought many goods from abroad, so a tariff raised their costs and might reduce British buying.
2. Clay's "home market" idea depended on each region needing the others. Which description matches the plan?
   a) Northern factories made goods, while Southern planters and Western farmers sold cotton and food to Northern workers.
3. Madison vetoed the 1817 bill for roads and canals because he doubted the Constitution allowed it. Which earlier argument does his veto remind you of?
   d) The argument between Hamilton and Jefferson over whether Congress may use powers that are not listed.
4. In 1824 Andrew Jackson won the most electoral and popular votes, yet John Quincy Adams became President. What was the reason?
   b) No candidate won a majority of electors, so the House of Representatives decided.
5. Which statement about the right to vote in Jackson's time is best supported by the lesson?
   a) The vote widened for white men, while some free Black men lost the right to vote.
6. In Worcester v. Georgia the Supreme Court said Georgia had no right to rule Cherokee land, yet the Cherokee were still removed. Why did the ruling fail to protect them?
   c) Georgia ignored the ruling, and Jackson did nothing to enforce it.
7. Many Black Seminoles fought beside the Seminoles in the Second Seminole War. What is the best explanation?
   b) They would likely lose their freedom if the army won.

Week 23: Reading Quiz: Lessons 2.1 and 2.2

1. Samuel Slater built a cotton mill in Rhode Island without carrying any plans from Britain. What fact explains why he had to rely on his memory?
   d) British law forbade sending out plans of the machines and forbade skilled workers to leave.
2. Before the Erie Canal, shipping a ton of freight from Buffalo to New York City cost about $100. After it, the cost was about $10. Which result would you most expect?
   b) Towns along the route, such as Rochester and Buffalo, would grow, and New York City would become a great port.
3. John Deere's steel plow helped settle the Midwest. Why did it appeal to people who wanted to own land rather than work in a factory?

c) It could cut the sticky prairie soil, so a family could farm its own land and sell its crops.

4. Which statement best describes the experience of the young women who worked in the Lowell mills?
   a) They earned cash wages, many for the first time, but worked long hours in noisy rooms and struck when pay was cut.
5. Charles Finney taught that every person could choose to turn to God and that a saved person should work to improve society. How does this connect to the reform societies of the 1830s?
   d) It gave people a reason to join groups that tried to fix problems such as drinking and a lack of schools.
6. A town has no school for its children and a problem with drunkenness. According to the habit Tocqueville noticed, what would Americans most likely do?
   b) Form a voluntary society to work on the problem together.
7. Lowell's mills ran on cotton grown in the South. What does this show about the North and South in the 1830s?
   c) The sections were growing into different economies, yet they were still tied together.

Week 24: Reading Quiz: Lessons 2.3 and 3.1

1. Thoreau spent a night in jail for refusing to pay a poll tax. Which belief did that action show?
   a) A person should openly refuse to obey a law he thinks is unjust and accept the punishment.
2. Emerson told readers to trust themselves and nature. How did Hawthorne and Melville differ from him?
   c) They warned that people are not as perfect as the optimists believed, writing about guilt and pride.
3. Most utopian communities, such as Brook Farm, did not last. Which reason from the lesson explains why?
   d) Sharing everything is hard when people have different goals and work habits, and a community that cannot feed itself cannot stay together.
4. The Declaration of Sentiments copied the language of the Declaration of Independence. What was the best reason for that choice?
   b) It argued that "all men and women are created equal" and listed wrongs the way the colonists had, so the nation's own promise could be used for women.
5. Horace Mann pushed for free common schools. What was his main reason?
   c) He believed a republic needs educated citizens, and that rich and poor children learning side by side would grow up to be better citizens.
6. Which pair of facts led many founders to hope that slavery might fade away on its own?
   d) Tobacco was wearing out Virginia's soil, and Congress could end the slave trade in 1808.
7. Jefferson wrote that "we have the wolf by the ear, and we can neither hold him, nor safely let him go." What did he mean?
   a) Slavery was wrong, but he could see no safe way to end it.

Week 25: Reading Quiz: Lessons 3.2 and 3.3

1. Eli Whitney's cotton gin saved labor, yet slavery grew after it was invented. What best explains this?
   b) The gin cleaned the cotton, but planting and picking were still done by hand, and cotton became so profitable that planters wanted more land and more slave workers.

2. Congress banned the import of slaves from Africa in 1808, yet about a million slaves were sold or moved within the country by 1860. What best explains this?
   d) Demand for workers in the new cotton lands was growing, while Virginia and Maryland had more slaves than their farms needed.
3. Which fact shows that the cotton economy did not belong to the South alone?
   a) Northern banks, shippers, and insurance companies took part in the cotton trade, and Northern and British mills bought the cotton.
4. What was one main effect of Nat Turner's revolt on Southern law?
   c) Fear led many Southern states to pass harsher laws, such as making it a crime to teach slaves to read.
5. Once Southern leaders began calling slavery a positive good, why did compromise with the North get harder?
   a) Earlier compromises treated slavery as a tolerated evil that would fade, and now compromise would mean protecting something the South called good and permanent.
6. John Quincy Adams fought the gag rule for eight years. Why did the rule make some Northerners worry about their own freedoms?
   b) It blocked the right of petition, which the First Amendment protects, and not only for abolitionists.
7. Which statement from Calhoun's argument is an opinion rather than a fact that can be checked?
   c) Slaves in the South were better off than factory workers in the North.

Week 26: Reading Quiz: Lessons 3.4 and 4.1

1. Which situation most worried the Mexican government in Texas by 1830?
   c) Americans outnumbered Mexicans in Texas, and many brought slaves even though Mexico was moving to end slavery.
2. President Van Buren did not annex Texas in 1837, even though Texas wanted it. What was the main reason?
   a) Annexation would add a huge slave state and risk war with Mexico.
3. Texas settlers signed so-called labor contracts that kept people in bondage for life. What does this show?
   d) The contracts were a way around Mexico's law against slavery.
4. In 1819 there were eleven free states and eleven slave states. Why was the Senate the South's protection?
   b) Each state had two senators, so equal numbers of free and slave states gave the sides equal strength, while the North had more seats in the House because it had more people.
5. Clay knew members would not vote for the whole Missouri Compromise at once. What did he do about it?
   d) He split it into separate bills, so each could pass with a different group of votes.
6. Some Southerners argued that spreading slavery over a wider area would thin it out and make it easier to end. What does the lesson say about that argument?
   c) Where slavery spread with cotton farming, it grew deeper, which showed the argument was wrong.

7. Most Americans were relieved by the Missouri Compromise, but Jefferson heard "a fire bell in the night." Why was he alarmed?
   a) He saw that the line matched a division between free and slave states, and that such a division could harden into two nations, so the compromise had only postponed the fight.

Week 27: Reading Quiz: Lessons 4.2 and 4.3

1. Which fact shows that many Southerners disliked the tariff but did not support nullification?
   d) Virginia and other states wanted lower tariffs but did not back South Carolina, so it stood alone.
2. Calhoun's South Carolina Exposition and Protest argued that a state could declare a federal law void. Which earlier writings did this idea build on?
   a) The Kentucky and Virginia Resolutions of 1798.
3. Jackson thought the tariff of 1828 was unfair, yet he threatened force against South Carolina. Which explanation fits the lesson best?
   b) He drew the line at nullification, because he believed the Union was the nation's first necessity.
4. How did the nullification crisis end?
   c) Clay's Compromise Tariff lowered rates over ten years, and South Carolina canceled its nullification of the tariff, so both sides claimed victory.
5. The Senate rejected the Texas annexation treaty in 1844. What best explains why?
   a) Calhoun's letter said annexation was needed to protect slavery, which angered Northern senators, and a treaty needs two-thirds of the Senate.
6. Supporters of annexation used a joint resolution in 1845 instead of a treaty. Why did that help them?
   d) It needed only a majority in both houses of Congress, not two-thirds of the Senate.
7. Congress paired Florida's entry into the Union in 1845 with Iowa's entry in 1846. What was the most likely reason?
   b) To keep the balance of free and slave states.

Week 28: Reading Quiz: Lessons 4.4 and 5.1

1. California's request to join the Union as a free state worried the South. Why?
   c) It would give the free states a 16 to 15 majority in the Senate for the first time, ending the balance held since 1820.
2. President Taylor's sudden death in July 1850 mattered to the Compromise of 1850. Why?
   b) His successor, Fillmore, supported the compromise, while Taylor had opposed Clay's approach.
3. Which part of the Compromise of 1850 did the South want most, and why did it cause trouble in the North?
   d) The stronger Fugitive Slave Act, because it required officials in every state to help return escaped slaves, drawing Northerners into slavery.
4. After the Fugitive Slave Act of 1850, thousands of free Black people in Northern cities left for Canada. What best explains this?
   a) The accused person could not testify, so free Black people feared being seized by mistake.
5. How did Frederick Douglass's view of the Constitution differ from William Lloyd Garrison's?
   c) Garrison thought the Constitution was proslavery, while Douglass came to believe that, rightly read, it was antislavery and urged people to use politics.

6. Which statement about the Underground Railroad is best supported by the lesson?
   b) It was a network of free Black people, white abolitionists, and churches, although most escapes were not organized by any network.
7. Northern states passed personal liberty laws that made it harder to return a fugitive. Why did this make Southerners distrust compromise?
   d) Southerners had once argued that a state could refuse a federal law, and now Northern states were doing the same, so why trust any compromise?

Week 29: Reading Quiz: Lessons 5.2 and 5.3

1. Why did Douglas agree to repeal the Missouri Compromise ban on slavery in the Kansas-Nebraska Act?
   a) Southern senators would not vote to organize the territories, which his railroad plan needed, unless the ban came off.
2. Why did the Kansas-Nebraska Act lead to the founding of the Republican Party?
   d) Many Northerners felt a promise of thirty-four years was broken to help slaveholders, so Whigs, Free Soilers, and antislavery Democrats formed a party to stop slavery from spreading.
3. After the Dred Scott decision, Republicans said it made their whole program illegal. Why?
   b) If Congress could not ban slavery in the territories, then keeping slavery out of the territories, their main goal, was not allowed.
4. Preston Brooks beat Senator Sumner with a cane, and many Southerners sent Brooks new canes. What does this episode best show?
   c) The sections no longer saw the same events in the same way.
5. Which statement best describes Lincoln's position on slavery in 1858?
   a) He believed the Constitution protected slavery in the states where it existed, but he wanted to stop its spread and put it on a course of ultimate extinction.
6. Douglas's Freeport answer helped him win in Illinois but hurt him with Southern Democrats. Why?
   d) He said settlers could keep slavery out by refusing to pass local laws to protect it, which seemed to ignore the Court's ruling.
7. Lincoln said, "A house divided against itself cannot stand." What did he actually predict?
   b) That the country could not remain permanently half slave and half free, and would become all one thing or all the other.

Week 30: Reading Quiz: Lessons 5.4 and 5.5

1. Frederick Douglass argued against John Brown's plan to raid Harpers Ferry. What was his reason?
   b) He thought Harpers Ferry was a trap where Brown would be surrounded.
2. Southern newspapers asked whether Northerners who praised Brown could be trusted. Which fact could a Republican such as Lincoln point to in reply?
   d) Lincoln said Brown was right to think slavery wrong, but that this could not excuse violence, bloodshed, and treason, and that votes were the way to end slavery.
3. Why did Brown's raid make a war easier to imagine, even though it did not start one?
   a) It frightened the South, which saw a Northern man try to start an uprising praised by Northern writers, and Southern states raised militias.

4. The Democratic Party split in 1860. Why was this so important?
   c) It was the one party that reached across the sections, and its split helped Lincoln win.
5. Lincoln won in 1860 with about 40 percent of the popular vote and not a single Southern electoral vote. What does this show?
   d) The North held most of the nation's electoral votes, and the Democratic split helped him, so the South could now be outvoted.
6. Lincoln promised not to interfere with slavery where it already existed. Why did Southern leaders still distrust him?
   a) His party believed slavery was wrong and had won the White House without a Southern vote, so they feared the government would one day work to end slavery everywhere.
7. A student says that Virginia was among the first states to leave the Union. Which fact shows the student is wrong?
   c) Seven Deep South states, including Florida, left between December 1860 and February 1861, while Virginia and the rest of the Upper South hesitated.

Week 31: Reading Quiz: Lessons 6.1 and 6.2

1. Lincoln sent ships carrying only food to Fort Sumter. Why was this a clever choice?
   c) It put the choice in Jefferson Davis's hands: if Davis fired on ships carrying bread, the Confederacy would be the one to start the war.
2. Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, and Arkansas had refused to leave the Union until April 1861. What changed their minds?
   a) Lincoln asked the states for 75,000 militia, which meant sending troops against their neighbors, and they refused.
3. Why was it so important for Lincoln to keep Maryland in the Union?
   d) Losing Maryland would have cut off Washington, D.C.
4. The Confederacy left the Union in the name of the rights of states. How did that create a problem for Jefferson Davis in wartime?
   b) Davis needed the same states to hand over soldiers and money, and some governors refused.
5. Which of these actions was part of General Scott's Anaconda Plan?
   a) Closing Southern ports with a blockade and taking the Mississippi River to split the Confederacy.
6. McClellan had a larger army than Lee in 1862 but pulled back to the James River. Which explanation fits the lesson best?
   d) He always believed the enemy was stronger than it really was and feared losing his army more than he wanted to win.
7. How did Jackson's Valley campaign help protect Richmond?
   b) The Union had to keep tens of thousands of soldiers near Washington to guard against him, which kept them away from McClellan.

Week 32: Reading Quiz: Lessons 6.3 and 6.4

1. Why did Union commanders put so much effort into controlling the Mississippi, Tennessee, and Cumberland rivers?

b) Rivers worked like highways, so controlling them let armies move deep into enemy land and helped split the Confederacy.

2. After the heavy losses at Shiloh, critics demanded that Lincoln remove Grant. Lincoln answered, "I can't spare this man. He fights." Why would that matter to Lincoln?
   d) Lincoln had been struggling with generals who would not use their armies, so he valued one who was willing to fight.
3. Why did the fall of New Orleans in April 1862 hurt the Confederacy so badly?
   a) It was the largest city in the South and the mouth of the Mississippi, so cotton and sugar could no longer leave by the river.
4. How did the Union blockade hurt life in the South?
   c) Cotton piled up on docks, and medicine, shoes, and machines became hard to buy, so prices rose.
5. Lincoln waited until after Antietam to announce the Emancipation Proclamation. Why?
   d) Seward warned him that issuing it during defeat would look like a cry for help, and Antietam gave him a victory to stand on.
6. Which slaves were NOT freed by the Emancipation Proclamation as it was written?
   b) Slaves in the border states and in parts of the South already held by Union armies.
7. How did the Emancipation Proclamation change the chances that Britain or France would help the Confederacy?
   c) Now that the war was about slavery, few British or French leaders dared to side with the Confederacy.

Week 33: Reading Quiz: Lessons 6.5 and 6.6

1. Lee decided to invade the North in the summer of 1863. Which set of reasons fits the lesson best?
   d) Virginia's farms were worn out, so he could feed his army on enemy land, and an invasion might win foreign help and make Northerners tired of the war.
2. After Pickett's Charge, Lee told the survivors, "It is all my fault." Why would he say that?
   a) He had ordered the attack on the center of the Union line, and about half the men were killed, wounded, or captured.
3. Why did the surrender of Vicksburg cut the Confederacy in two?
   c) It gave the Union the Mississippi River, so Texas, Arkansas, and most of Louisiana were cut off from the rest.
4. Lincoln spoke for about two minutes at Gettysburg. What did he choose to talk about?
   b) What the war was for: the idea that all men are created equal and a new birth of freedom.
5. Many working men said the war was "a rich man's war and a poor man's fight." What fact about the Union draft explains this?
   d) A man could avoid service by paying $300 or hiring a substitute.
6. The Confederacy passed a national draft in 1862. Why was that a surprise?
   c) It came from a government built to defend the rights of states, yet it took power over individual men.
7. Earlier attempts to pass a Homestead Act had failed before the war, but the Republican Congress passed it in 1862. What is the best explanation?

a) Southern members had left Congress, and Southern senators had blocked such a law before the war.

Week 34: Reading Quiz: Lessons 6.7 and 6.8

1. Grant ordered every Union army to attack at the same time. What was the purpose?
   b) So that the Confederates could not move troops from one place to another.
2. In the Overland Campaign the Union lost about 55,000 men and Lee about 33,000, yet this still favored the Union. Why?
   c) The Union could replace its men, and the Confederacy could not.
3. Why did the fall of Atlanta matter so much to Lincoln in 1864?
   a) Northern voters had grown tired of the war, and the victory changed the mood and helped Lincoln win reelection.
4. Sherman believed that a harsh war would be a shorter war. What reasoning did he use?
   d) Southern farms and railroads fed and supplied the armies, and the people at home kept up the will to fight, so showing that rebellion would cost everything would end it sooner.
5. Which statement about Sherman's March to the Sea is best supported by the lesson?
   b) Sherman's men destroyed railroads and took crops and livestock, burned barns, mills, and cotton gins along a path about sixty miles wide, but did not usually kill civilians.
6. At Appomattox, some of Lee's officers urged him to scatter into the hills and fight as guerrillas. Why did he refuse?
   a) It would have left the country in ruin and the South with years of misery.
7. Grant let Confederate soldiers keep their horses and mules, ordered food for Lee's army, and told his own men not to cheer. What does this show about how he saw the end of the war?
   d) He wanted the men to go home and plow, and he saw them as countrymen again, not as enemies to be humbled.

Week 35: Reading Quiz: Lessons 7.1 and 7.2

1. Some Republicans thought Lincoln's ten percent plan was too easy on the South. Which fact explains their view?
   a) It let a state form a new government after only ten percent of its 1860 voters took the oath, while the Wade-Davis Bill would have required a majority.
2. Johnson disliked rich planters, yet his plan changed the South very little. Which fact best explains why?
   d) Most ex-Confederates could be pardoned with an oath, he granted thousands of pardons to planters who asked, and he opposed Black voting.
3. Why did many Northerners read the Black Codes as an attempt to bring back slavery under another name?
   a) They tied workers to yearly labor contracts, fined people for vagrancy, and limited where they could rent land, which kept a steady supply of workers for white landowners.
4. Congress refused to seat the Southerners elected in 1865, and this helped the Radical Republicans. Why?
   c) The new Southern states had elected former Confederate leaders, which made many Northerners ask whether Union soldiers had died for this.

5. Republicans wrote the protections of the Civil Rights Act into the Fourteenth Amendment. What was their reason?
   d) A simple law could be undone by a later Congress or struck down by the courts.
6. How did the first sentence of the Fourteenth Amendment answer the Dred Scott decision?
   b) It made all persons born or naturalized in the United States citizens, undoing the ruling that Black Americans could not be citizens.
7. Which statement shows how Florida's 1868 constitution differed from its 1838 constitution?
   c) The 1868 constitution let all adult male citizens vote regardless of race and created a system of public schools, while the 1838 constitution protected slavery and let only free white men vote.

Week 36: Reading Quiz: Lessons 7.3 and 7.4

1. Rumors spread of "forty acres and a mule," yet most freedpeople received no land. Which explanation fits the lesson?
   a) President Johnson returned most of the land to its pardoned owners, and Congress refused Stevens's plan because many Republicans believed strongly in protecting property.
2. Many sharecroppers ended each year owing more than they had earned. What best explains this?
   c) They bought seed, tools, and food on credit with the crop held as payment, so a failed crop or low prices left them in debt.
3. Freedpeople built schools in churches and cabins and paid for their own teachers. What does this best show?
   d) They saw education as a high priority, a way to protect themselves, read the Bible, and sign contracts.
4. Which statement about the Southern Republican governments of Reconstruction is best supported by the lesson?
   b) They built the first public school systems in many Southern states and repaired roads, though critics charged them with waste and corruption.
5. In Cruikshank in 1876, the Supreme Court weakened federal protection of voting. What was the Court's reasoning?
   a) It said the Fourteenth Amendment limited what states could do, so the federal government could not use it to punish private individuals for attacking citizens.
6. Which set of events best explains why Northern support for Reconstruction faded in the 1870s?
   c) A depression after the Panic of 1873, scandals in Grant's administration, and a Democratic win in the House in 1874 turned attention elsewhere.
7. How did the disputed election of 1876 lead to the end of Reconstruction?
   d) A commission gave the disputed votes to Hayes, and many historians believe Democrats accepted him in return for his withdrawing the last federal troops from the South.

Reading Quiz answer spread across all 126 questions: a = 31, b = 29, c = 32, d = 34.

8. Quarterly Exams: Teacher Keys

Each exam is multiple choice only, 27 questions, one point each, about 40 minutes, covering that quarter only (not cumulative). The line under each question gives the lesson, the benchmark, and the reason the keyed answer is best. The correct choice is marked with a check.

Quarter 3 Exam: A Republic Divides Over What It Is Building

Teacher review copy. Multiple choice only, 27 questions, 1 point each, about 40 minutes. Benchmark codes are teacher-facing and never appear in the Canvas quiz.

1. A small farmer in Virginia owns his own land, sells his crops nearby, and distrusts bankers. Which leader's picture of the republic would he most likely support?

a) Hamilton, whose plan paid the war debts and gave the nation sound credit.
b) Hamilton, who wanted the national government to hold the money of every state's farmers.
c) Jefferson, who pictured a republic of independent farmers and feared favors for bankers and merchants. ✓
d) Neither man, because both wanted the same kind of government.

Lesson F.1 · SS.8.A.3.3 · F.1 says Jefferson pictured independent farmers and feared a government that favored bankers and merchants; the farmer's situation matches that picture.

2. Congressman Matthew Lyon was jailed under the Sedition Act, and his Vermont voters re-elected him while he sat in jail. Which conclusion does this fact best support?

a) Many voters did not think that criticizing the President deserved punishment. ✓
b) Most Vermont voters had never heard of the Sedition Act.
c) The Supreme Court had already struck down the Sedition Act.
d) The Federalists had lost control of Congress by then.

Lesson F.2 · SS.8.A.3.13; SS.8.CG.2.5 · Re-electing a jailed critic shows voters disagreed with punishing him. The other choices are not supported (the Court was full of Federalists and the Acts stayed in force until 1801-02).

3. Jefferson and Madison answered the Alien and Sedition Acts through the Kentucky and Virginia legislatures instead of asking the Supreme Court. Which fact best explains their choice?

a) The Constitution forbids the Supreme Court to hear cases about Congress.
b) President Adams had ordered the Court to stay out of the dispute.
c) Kentucky and Virginia were the only states that had ever been taxed.
d) The Court was full of Federalists, the party that had passed the Acts. ✓

Lesson F.2 · SS.8.A.3.13; SS.8.A.1.6 · F.2: the Court was full of Federalists, so the two men turned to the states.

4. In the election of 1800, Jefferson and Burr each received 73 electoral votes, even though everyone knew Jefferson was the candidate for President. What caused the tie?

a) Burr secretly persuaded enough Republican electors to cast every one of their votes for him alone.
b) Each elector cast two votes for President, with no separate vote for Vice President, and all Republican electors voted for both men. ✓
c) Congress had changed the number of electors in each state just before the election was held.
d) The Federalist electors had all agreed to vote for Burr so that Jefferson could not win outright.

Lesson F.3 · SS.8.A.3.14; SS.8.CG.1.3 · F.3: the original voting rules had no separate Vice President vote. The Twelfth Amendment fixed this.

5. In Marbury v. Madison, Marshall said Marbury had a right to his commission but did not order Madison to deliver it. Why is the case still called a great victory for the Court?

a) The Court forced Jefferson to hand over every commission the midnight judges had been given.
b) The Court claimed the power of judicial review without giving Jefferson an order he could ignore. ✓
c) The Court won the power to choose who becomes President.
d) The Court removed Madison from office for refusing to obey it.

Lesson F.4 · SS.8.A.4.13; SS.8.CG.1.3 · F.4: Marshall gave up a small power to claim a far bigger one, and avoided the trap of an order Jefferson could ignore.

6. In McCulloch v. Maryland, Marshall read the "necessary and proper" clause to allow a national bank. Whose argument from the 1790s did his reading follow?

a) Jefferson's argument that Congress may use only the powers the Constitution lists.
b) Madison's argument that a state may interpose against a federal law.
c) Adams's argument that the government could punish false writing.
d) Hamilton's argument for implied powers. ✓

Lesson F.4 · SS.8.A.4.13 · F.1 and F.4: Hamilton argued that a bank was allowed by implied powers; Marshall read the clause the same way.

7. Which chain of events best explains why France offered to sell all of Louisiana in 1803?

a) A slave revolt in Haiti defeated Napoleon's army, so Louisiana lost its value to him, and he needed money for war. ✓
b) Jefferson threatened war, so Napoleon sold the land rather than fight the United States over it.
c) Spain demanded that Louisiana be returned, so Napoleon sold it before Spain could take it back.
d) American settlers had filled the land, so France could no longer make any claim to it.

Lesson 1.1 · SS.8.A.4.12; SS.8.A.4.1 · 1.1: Haiti's revolution ruined Napoleon's plan for Saint-Domingue and Louisiana, and he needed money for war.

8. Jefferson believed the federal government could use only powers the Constitution lists. Why did the Louisiana Purchase put him in a hard position?

a) The Constitution forbade the President to make any treaty with France.
b) Congress had already voted against buying New Orleans from France.
c) Nothing in the Constitution said the President could buy land from a foreign country. ✓
d) The Senate wanted to pay France far more than Jefferson was willing to pay.

Lesson 1.1 · SS.8.A.3.14 · 1.1: Jefferson wondered whether he needed an amendment, then decided the chance was too good to lose.

9. The Monroe Doctrine told Europe to stay out of the Americas, even though the United States had a small navy. What gave the warning real force?

a) A treaty with Spain that gave the United States a large fleet.
b) The French army, which had stayed on after selling Louisiana.
c) A pledge from the Latin American nations to fight beside the United States.
d) The British navy, because Britain also wanted free trade in the Americas. ✓

Lesson 1.2 · SS.8.A.4.1 · 1.2: the real power behind the Doctrine was the British navy, since Britain did not want other empires to have the trade.

10. A Southern planter in 1820 sells his cotton to Britain and buys many goods from Europe. Why would he likely dislike Clay's protective tariff?

a) It forced him to sell all of his cotton to Northern factories at a fixed price.
b) It raised the price of the goods he bought and might lead Britain to buy less of his cotton. ✓
c) It took away his right to vote in federal elections unless he paid it.
d) It banned the export of cotton to Britain and every other country.

Lesson 1.3 · SS.8.A.4.8 · 1.3: the tariff helped Northern factories but hurt planters who sold abroad and bought imported goods.

11. In Marbury, Marshall worried that Jefferson might simply ignore an order from the Court. Which later event showed that this kind of worry was realistic?

a) Maryland refused to accept the ruling in McCulloch v. Maryland and taxed the bank anyway.
b) New York ignored the Gibbons ruling and kept its steamboat monopoly in place.
c) Georgia ignored the ruling in Worcester v. Georgia, and Jackson did nothing to enforce it. ✓
d) Congress voted to abolish the Supreme Court in 1832 after the Worcester ruling.

Lesson 1.4 · SS.8.A.4.13; SS.8.CG.1.3 · 1.4: the rule of law depends on leaders obeying courts they dislike; Georgia ignored Worcester and Jackson did not enforce it.

12. Black Seminoles fought beside the Seminoles in the Second Seminole War. Which fact best explains why?

a) Many were free or had escaped slavery, and they would lose their freedom if the army won. ✓
b) The army had promised them land in the West if they agreed to stop fighting.
c) Spain was paying them to defend Florida against the United States Army.
d) Osceola had threatened to harm them if they refused to fight.

Lesson 1.4 · SS.8.A.4.17; SS.8.A.4.18 · 1.4: Black Seminoles, free or escaped from slavery, had the most to lose from an American victory.

13. Lowell mill women earned cash wages they controlled, yet they went on strike when owners cut their pay. Which statement best describes what this shows?

a) Mill work gave them new independence but also long hours and little control over their pay. ✓
b) Mill work paid so well that owners could afford to hire only men.
c) Mill workers were forced to labor without wages.
d) The mills closed after the first strike, and the women returned to their farms.

Lesson 2.1 · SS.8.A.4.7 · 2.1: for many it was the first money they ever controlled, but the days were twelve or thirteen hours long and owners cut pay.

14. A Lowell mill worker in 1835 and a slave on a Georgia plantation seem to live in different worlds. How were their lives connected?

a) Both were paid wages set by the same owners.
b) Both worked in mills owned by Francis Cabot Lowell.
c) The mill ran on cotton that slaves grew in the South. ✓
d) Both attended the same camp meetings.

Lesson 2.1 · SS.8.A.4.5; SS.8.A.4.10 · 2.1: the Lowell mills ran on cotton grown in the South by slaves, so the two sections were tied together.

15. Which belief would most likely lead a person in the 1830s to join a voluntary society that fought drunkenness?

a) That God had already decided long ago who would be saved.
b) That people can choose to change, and that society can be improved. ✓
c) That government should solve every problem so citizens need not.
d) That the nation's problems would fade away without any effort.

Lesson 2.2 · SS.8.A.4.9 · 2.2: Finney taught that each person could choose, and that saved people should work to improve society. Predestination teaches the opposite.

16. The Declaration of Sentiments copied the language of the Declaration of Independence. What was the best reason?

a) Because Congress required reform documents to use that wording.
b) To show that women wanted to rejoin Britain.
c) Because the Declaration of Independence already named women as equal citizens.
d) To argue that the nation's founding promise of equality applied to women too. ✓

Lesson 2.3 · SS.8.A.4.14; SS.8.CG.3.1 · 2.3: Stanton used the Declaration's words to say that all men and women are created equal.

17. Most utopian communities, such as Brook Farm, lasted only a short time. Which earlier lesson from the course does 2.3 say they repeated?

a) Like Roanoke, they vanished after an attack by Spanish soldiers on their village.
b) Like the Pilgrims, they were forced out by a king who disliked their ideas.
c) Like Jamestown and Plymouth, sharing everything made it hard to produce enough to survive. ✓
d) Like the Quakers, they refused to form any government among themselves.

Lesson 2.3 · SS.8.A.4.9; SS.8.HC.1.1 · 2.3: the colonists at Jamestown and Plymouth tried sharing their food, and it nearly ruined them.

18. Jefferson wrote that "we have the wolf by the ear, and we can neither hold him, nor safely let him go." What did he mean?

a) Slavery was a Northern problem that Northerners should solve.
b) Slavery was wrong, but he saw no safe way to end it. ✓
c) Slavery would end on its own within a few years.
d) Congress was too weak to ban the slave trade.

Lesson 3.1 · SS.8.A.4.3 · 3.1: Jefferson meant that slavery was wrong, but he could not see a safe way to end it.

19. The cotton gin cleaned cotton fifty times faster than hand work, yet it increased the demand for slaves. Why?

a) The gin needed hundreds of workers to turn its crank all day long.
b) Cotton prices fell sharply, so planters needed more workers just to break even.
c) Congress required planters to use slave labor to run every cotton gin.
d) People still had to plant, hoe, and pick cotton by hand, and each acre now earned a large profit. ✓

Lesson 3.2 · SS.8.A.4.10; SS.68.AA.2.2 · 3.2: the gin cleaned the cotton, but planting, hoeing, and picking were still done by hand, and profits made planters want more land and more workers.

20. In the winter of 1831-32, Virginia's legislature debated ending slavery and then did nothing, and lawmakers across the South passed harsher laws. Which event, just months earlier, best explains the fear behind this?

a) Nat Turner's revolt in Southampton County. ✓
b) The founding of Liberia.
c) The Panic of 1819.
d) The invention of the cotton gin.

Lesson 3.3 · SS.8.A.5.2; SS.8.A.4.11 · 3.3: Turner's revolt in August 1831 terrified white Southerners, and a door that had been slightly open was shut.

21. Which of these statements about Calhoun's time is an opinion rather than a fact that can be checked?

a) Calhoun gave the speech in the Senate on February 6, 1837.
b) Slaves in the South were better off than factory workers in the North. ✓
c) The House passed a gag rule on antislavery petitions in 1836.
d) Nat Turner's revolt took place in 1831.

Lesson 3.3 · SS.8.A.1.4 · 3.3 (Fact or Opinion?): that slaves were better off is an opinion, and the evidence says otherwise. The other statements are dates and events.

22. By 1835 about 30,000 settlers from the United States lived in Texas, compared with a few thousand Tejanos. How did this change worry Mexico?

a) Mexico feared that Texas would slip away from it, just as Florida had slipped away from Spain. ✓
b) Mexico feared the settlers would raise taxes on the Tejanos.
c) Mexico feared that the Comanche would join the settlers.
d) Mexico feared that the settlers would convert the Tejanos to a new religion.

Lesson 3.4 · SS.8.A.4.1; SS.8.A.4.4 · 3.4: Americans outnumbered Mexicans in Texas, and Mexico feared losing it as Spain lost Florida.

23. Clay split the Missouri Compromise into separate bills. Why did that help it pass?

a) The Senate could vote on the separate parts without needing any vote in the House.
b) Separate bills did not need to be signed by the President to become law.
c) It let Missouri join the Union without having to write a state constitution.
d) Each bill could win a different group of votes, because few members liked the whole package. ✓

Lesson 4.1 · SS.8.A.4.2 · 4.1: Clay knew members would never vote for the whole package at once, so each part could pass with different votes.

24. Most Americans were relieved when the Missouri Compromise passed, but Jefferson was terrified. What did he see that others missed?

a) The compromise gave Congress the power to end slavery in every state of the Union at once.
b) Missouri's new constitution would soon outlaw slavery there and upset the balance again.
c) The line matched the split between free and slave states, and a split along a map line could harden into two nations. ✓
d) Maine's entry into the Union as a free state would give the North a clear majority in the Senate.

Lesson 4.1 · SS.8.A.5.2; SS.8.A.1.2 · 4.1: Jefferson's "fire bell in the night" was a warning that the compromise postponed the fight but did not settle it.

25. Jackson agreed that the Tariff of 1828 was unfair, yet he threatened to use force against South Carolina. Which reason best explains this?

a) He wanted to keep the tariff high because he believed it helped Northern factories.
b) He believed Calhoun had fought for Britain against the United States in 1812.
c) Congress had already ordered him to collect the tariff by force of arms.
d) He believed nullification threatened the Union, which he saw as the nation's first necessity. ✓

Lesson 4.2 · SS.8.A.5.1 · 4.2: Jackson was no friend of high tariffs, but he drew the line at nullification.

26. Calhoun's argument for nullification in 1828 built on ideas from which earlier documents?

a) The Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798.
b) The Missouri Compromise of 1820.
c) The Kentucky and Virginia Resolutions of 1798. ✓
d) Jackson's Proclamation to the People of South Carolina.

Lesson 4.2 · SS.8.A.5.1 · 4.2: the Exposition and Protest built on the Resolutions written by Jefferson and Madison.

27. The treaty to annex Texas failed in the Senate, 35 to 16, but a joint resolution passed, 27 to 25. What explains the different results?

a) A treaty needs two-thirds of the Senate, while a joint resolution needs only a majority of both houses. ✓
b) The treaty needed the approval of every state, but the resolution needed only Congress.
c) The Senate changed its mind when Calhoun apologized for his letter.
d) The President of Texas signed the resolution, so the Senate could not vote against it.

Lesson 4.3 · SS.8.A.4.1; SS.8.CG.1.2 · 4.3: Tyler switched to a joint resolution because it needs only a majority in both houses.

Quarter 4 Exam: Compromise Fails and the Union Is Tested

Teacher review copy. Multiple choice only, 27 questions, 1 point each, about 40 minutes. Benchmark codes are teacher-facing and never appear in the Canvas quiz.

1. The Wilmot Proviso, which banned slavery from land taken from Mexico, passed the House several times but always died in the Senate. Which fact best explains why?

a) The Senate had no members from the free states, so the bill had no support there.
b) The Senate was evenly split between 15 free states and 15 slave states, so neither side could pass its way. ✓
c) The President vetoed it each time it passed the House, and the veto was never overridden.
d) Its text would have banned slavery in the Southern states, which the Senate rejected.

Lesson 4.4 · SS.8.A.4.1; SS.8.A.4.2 · 4.4: the evenly split Senate meant neither side could pass its way.

2. Douglas split Clay's failed bill into five separate bills and passed all five by September 1850. Why did that work?

a) Each separate bill needed only a handful of votes to pass the Senate.
b) President Fillmore ordered the Senate to pass each of the five bills.
c) Separate bills did not need to be passed by the House of Representatives.
d) Members who opposed the whole package could still vote for the parts they liked. ✓

Lesson 4.4 · SS.8.A.4.1; SS.8.A.5.2 · 4.4: Douglas found a different majority for each bill.

3. Southerners had once argued that a state could refuse to obey a federal law it thought unconstitutional. Why did Northern "personal liberty laws" against the Fugitive Slave Act make the South distrust any compromise?

a) The North was now picking which federal laws to obey, so Southerners doubted it would honor any deal. ✓
b) Southerners feared the North would stop buying Southern cotton and ruin its planters.
c) Southerners feared Northern states would send armed soldiers across the border into the South.
d) Southerners feared the Supreme Court would soon side with the North on every question.

Lesson 5.1 · SS.68.AA.2.4; SS.8.A.5.2 · 5.1: once both sections began to pick which laws to obey, the habit that held the Union together began to weaken.

4. Southern senators would not vote to organize Kansas and Nebraska unless a change was made. What was the change, and what did it help bring about?

a) The ban on slavery was extended to Kansas, and the Whig Party grew stronger.
b) Congress ended the Fugitive Slave Act, and the Free Soil Party disappeared.
c) The ban on slavery north of 36°30′ was repealed, and angry Northerners formed the Republican Party. ✓
d) The railroad plan was cancelled, and the Democrats split in two.

Lesson 5.2 · SS.8.A.4.1 · 5.2: the Kansas-Nebraska Act repealed the Missouri Compromise ban, and Whigs, Free Soilers, and antislavery Democrats formed the Republican Party.

5. Taney's opinion in Dred Scott said Congress had no power to ban slavery in the territories. Why did Republicans say the decision made their whole program illegal?

a) Their main goal was to end slavery in every state at once.
b) Their main goal was to make Dred Scott a citizen.
c) Their main goal was to keep slavery out of the territories. ✓
d) Their main goal was to give the Supreme Court more power.

Lesson 5.2 · SS.8.A.5.1; SS.8.A.5.2; SS.68.AA.2.5 · 5.2: the Republican Party's one main goal was stopping slavery from spreading into the territories.

6. Douglas's Freeport answer helped him win in Illinois. Why did it hurt him with Southern Democrats?

a) It seemed to say that settlers could ignore the Court's ruling by refusing to pass laws that protect slavery. ✓
b) Their main goal was to end slavery in every state of the Union at once.
c) Their main goal was to win Dred Scott his citizenship through a new court case.
d) Their main goal was to give the Supreme Court more power over the territories.

Lesson 5.3 · SS.8.A.5.1; SS.8.A.1.6 · 5.3: Douglas said slavery needs local laws to survive, which made Southern Democrats think he was ignoring the Court.

7. Frederick Douglass told John Brown that Harpers Ferry was a trap. Which result of the raid showed Douglass was right?

a) Lee's Marines drove Brown's men out, and the slaves rose in the mountains.
b) Brown escaped to Canada with the stolen weapons.
c) Virginia freed Brown after Northern leaders protested.
d) Brown's men were trapped in the fire engine house and captured, and the slaves did not rise. ✓

Lesson 5.4 · SS.8.A.4.3; SS.8.A.5.4 · 5.4: the slaves did not rise, and Brown was surrounded and captured.

8. Lincoln won the election of 1860 with only about 40 percent of the popular vote. How did he still win the presidency?

a) Southern states allowed his name on their ballots and counted every vote he received.
b) He carried every Northern state, and the Democrats had split their vote between two candidates. ✓
c) The House of Representatives chose him after the electoral vote ended in a tie.
d) The Constitutional Union Party withdrew from the race and urged its voters to back him.

Lesson 5.5 · SS.8.A.5.4 · 5.5: the North held most of the electoral votes, and the Democratic split helped him.

9. Florida troops seized the arsenal at Chattahoochee and the forts at St. Augustine, but Union soldiers kept Fort Pickens, Key West, and the Dry Tortugas. Why did those forts matter later in the war?

a) They gave the Union Navy bases on Florida's coast for the blockade. ✓
b) They protected the railroad that carried Florida's cattle to Virginia.
c) They were the only place where Black soldiers could enlist.
d) They blocked the Union from ever reaching Georgia.

Lesson 5.5 · SS.8.A.5.7 · 5.5 and 6.3: the Union Navy held Key West and Fort Pickens and used them as bases.

10. Lincoln sent ships carrying only food to Fort Sumter and told South Carolina's governor they were coming. What was his thinking?

a) It would force the soldiers inside the fort to surrender as soon as they had eaten.
b) It would show the Confederacy that the Union Navy was too weak to fight a war.
c) It would trick the Confederates into leaving Charleston Harbor without a fight.
d) It left Davis to decide whether to fire first, so the Confederacy would be the one to start a war. ✓

Lesson 6.1 · SS.8.A.5.3 · 6.1: if Davis fired on a ship carrying bread, the Confederacy would be the aggressor.

11. Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, and Arkansas refused to leave the Union until April 1861. What changed their minds?

a) Lincoln announced that slavery would end in every state, including their own.
b) Lincoln asked them to send troops against their neighbors in the Confederacy. ✓
c) Davis offered them important places in the new Confederate government.
d) The Supreme Court ruled that a state had the legal right to secede.

Lesson 6.1 · SS.8.A.5.4 · 6.1: the call for 75,000 militia asked them to fight their neighbors, so they left.

12. Why did the smaller Confederate army keep beating the larger Union army in Virginia in 1862?

a) Lee had many more soldiers and far more weapons than McClellan did.
b) McClellan refused to follow Lincoln's orders and retreated without being attacked.
c) Lee took bold risks and trusted his officers, while McClellan feared losing his army more than winning. ✓
d) Jackson's army was larger than all of the Union forces in the East put together.

Lesson 6.2 · SS.8.A.5.6 · 6.2: McClellan believed the enemy was much stronger than it was; Lee and Jackson were bold.

13. When critics wanted Grant removed after Shiloh, Lincoln said, "I can't spare this man. He fights." Which problem in the East did this remark answer?

a) Lee's refusal to cross the Potomac into the state of Maryland.
b) Pope's decision to retreat from the supply base at Manassas.
c) Jackson's long march through the Shenandoah Valley in the spring.
d) McClellan's habit of not attacking even when his army was larger. ✓

Lesson 6.3 · SS.8.A.5.3; SS.8.A.5.6 · 6.2 and 6.3: Lincoln had a general who built an army but would not use it; Grant would fight.

14. Secretary of State Seward told Lincoln to wait for a Union victory before announcing the Emancipation Proclamation. Why?

a) Because the Constitution required a victory first.
b) If it came during a defeat, it would look like a cry for help. ✓
c) Because Congress had not yet passed the Confiscation Acts.
d) Because the border states would not hear it before then.

Lesson 6.4 · SS.8.A.5.3 · 6.4: Seward warned that issuing it in defeat would look weak; Antietam gave Lincoln his moment.

15. The Emancipation Proclamation freed slaves only in states still in rebellion. Which reason did Lincoln give that explains this limit?

a) Lincoln believed Congress would end slavery in the border states during the following year.
b) Lincoln thought the Constitution allowed him to free slaves only inside the Deep South.
c) It was a war measure against property that helped the enemy, so it did not reach loyal border states. ✓
d) Lincoln wanted slavery to continue in the border states for as long as the war lasted.

Lesson 6.4 · SS.68.AA.2.7; SS.8.A.5.3 · 6.4: Lincoln called it a war measure, using his power as commander in chief to take property that helped the enemy.

16. On July 3-4, 1863, Pickett's Charge failed and Vicksburg surrendered. What did these two events do together?

a) They ended Lee's hope of winning by invading the North and cut the Confederacy in two along the Mississippi. ✓
b) They ended the war within weeks, because Lee and Davis agreed to make peace.
c) They gave the Confederacy control of the whole length of the Mississippi River.
d) They persuaded Britain and France to recognize the Confederacy as a nation.

Lesson 6.5 · SS.8.A.5.6 · 6.5: after July 1863 the Confederacy could no longer hope to win by invasion or outside help.

17. In 1863 a poor laborer and a rich merchant in New York both received draft notices. Which man was more likely to avoid service, and why?

a) The laborer, because the draft excused men who owned no property.
b) The merchant, because he could pay $300 or hire a substitute. ✓
c) The merchant, because the draft excused men over thirty.
d) Neither, because the Union draft allowed no exceptions.

Lesson 6.6 · SS.8.A.5.3 · 6.6: the Union draft let men pay $300 or hire a substitute, so workers called it a rich man's war and a poor man's fight.

18. Black regiments, including the 54th Massachusetts, fought at Olustee in 1864. Which earlier change made it possible for Black men to serve in the Union army?

a) The Homestead Act, which gave land to soldiers.
b) The Thirteenth Amendment, which ended slavery.
c) The Union draft, which required Black men to serve.
d) The Emancipation Proclamation, after which Black men could join. ✓

Lesson 6.6 · SS.8.A.5.7; SS.68.AA.2.7 · 6.4 and 6.6: after January 1, 1863, Black men could join the army; the 54th Massachusetts was among the first and most famous units.

19. In six weeks of fighting, Grant lost about 55,000 men and Lee about 33,000, yet Grant kept attacking. Why was this a sound plan?

a) The Union could replace its soldiers and the Confederacy could not. ✓
b) Grant believed Lee would surrender after the first heavy losses.
c) Grant's army was smaller and had to attack before Lee grew stronger.
d) Lincoln had ordered him not to stop fighting for any reason.

Lesson 6.7 · SS.8.A.5.3; SS.8.A.5.6 · 6.7: the Union could replace its men and the Confederacy could not, so the larger losses were still a gain.

20. Lincoln believed in the summer of 1864 that he would probably lose the election. Why did the fall of Atlanta help him win?

a) It forced McClellan to withdraw from the race for President that November.
b) It ended the war, so voters felt they no longer needed a change in leaders.
c) It showed voters that the war was being won, which ended the weariness that had made them doubt it. ✓
d) It convinced a large number of Southern voters to support Lincoln in the election.

Lesson 6.7 · SS.8.A.5.3 · 6.7: voters had grown tired, and Atlanta changed the mood; Lincoln won 212 electoral votes to 21.

21. Some of Lee's officers urged him to scatter his army and fight on as guerrillas. Why did it matter that Lee refused?

a) Lee's army was too large to hide in the mountains.
b) Grant had promised to hang every officer who kept fighting.
c) A guerrilla war might have dragged on for years and left much deeper hatred. ✓
d) Guerrilla fighters were not allowed to sign a parole.

Lesson 6.8 · SS.8.A.5.3; SS.8.A.5.6 · 6.8: Lee said it would leave the country in ruin and the South with years of misery.

22. Mississippi's Black Code let freedpeople marry, own some property, and sue in court, but required yearly labor contracts and fined people without work. What aim did the codes share?

a) To give freedpeople the same rights as white citizens.
b) To pay for new schools in the South.
c) To help the Freedmen's Bureau find work for former soldiers.
d) To keep a steady supply of workers for white landowners. ✓

Lesson 7.1 · SS.8.A.5.8 · 7.1: the codes were not all alike, but they shared one aim, to keep a steady supply of workers for white landowners.

23. The Fourteenth Amendment says each state's seats in Congress depend on its whole population, and a state that kept men from voting would lose seats. Why would this give Southern states a reason to let Black men vote?

a) Black voters would pay higher taxes to the state.
b) Keeping Black men from voting would lower the state's number of seats in Congress. ✓
c) The amendment ordered every state to hold a new election.
d) Southern states would lose their seats if they refused to ratify it.

Lesson 7.2 · SS.8.A.5.8; SS.8.CG.2.6 · 7.2: seats are based on the whole population, so a state that kept men from voting would lose seats.

24. Which choice correctly compares Florida's constitutions of 1838 and 1868?

a) The 1838 constitution protected slavery and let only free white men vote, but the 1868 one let all adult male citizens vote and made everyone equal before the law. ✓
b) The 1838 constitution let all adult male citizens vote regardless of race, but the 1868 one let only free white men vote.
c) Both constitutions protected slavery, but the 1868 one also set up a system of public schools for the state.
d) Both constitutions let every man vote, but the 1868 one gave the governor strong powers over county officials.

Lesson 7.2 · SS.8.CG.1.2; SS.8.CG.2.1 · 7.2: the 1868 constitution reflected the Reconstruction amendments; the 1838 one was written to protect slavery.

25. Many sharecroppers bought seed, tools, and food on credit before the crop came in. Why did so many end the year owing more than they earned?

a) Landowners charged them more in rent each year than the whole crop was worth.
b) If the crop failed or prices fell, they could not pay the store debt, and it carried over to the next year. ✓
c) They were paid in paper money that lost its value before they could spend it.
d) The Freedmen's Bureau charged them a fee for every labor contract they signed.

Lesson 7.3 · SS.8.A.5.8 · 7.3: the crop-lien system left families in debt that was hard to escape.

26. Grant's Enforcement Acts and troops broke up the Klan for a time, yet federal protection of Black voters soon faded. Which pair of events best explains the change?

a) The Supreme Court narrowed federal power in Cruikshank, and Northerners tired of the struggle after the Panic of 1873. ✓
b) Congress repealed the Fourteenth Amendment, and Grant resigned from the presidency in disgrace.
c) The Supreme Court banned the Klan, and Southern voters elected Black governors in every state.
d) The Freedmen's Bureau closed its offices, and Congress then passed the Fifteenth Amendment.

Lesson 7.4 · SS.8.A.5.8 · 7.4: Cruikshank weakened the law, and Northern fatigue left Southern Republican governments standing alone.

27. Which statement best describes what the Civil War settled and what it left unsettled?

a) It settled that the Court alone decides the meaning of the Constitution, but left slavery in the border states.
b) It settled that Congress could not override a veto, but left the question of the Union open.
c) It settled that the amendments would be strictly enforced, but left the states free to leave.
d) It settled that no state could leave the Union, but how far the new amendments would be enforced stayed open. ✓

Lesson 7.4 · SS.8.A.5.8; SS.8.A.1.6 · 7.4: the war ended secession and slavery, but after 1877 the amendments were poorly enforced.

9. Quarter Capstones

Two Capstones, one per quarter, each worth 40 points. Both are Canvas assignments submitted as a Word file by file upload, solo or in an optional group of two or three (the Quarter 3 intro wrapper asks students whether they want group work; groups submit one shared file with a short individual contribution note from each member and are scored with the same rubric).

	Quarter 3 Capstone	Quarter 4 Capstone
Title	Crossroads: A Turning-Point Dossier	Point of No Return: A Case File on the Union Tested
Task	Choose one of ten turning points (Hamilton's bank through the Mexican War). Build a dossier: situation, decision, timeline table, two sources, the road not taken, what it left unresolved, what the student is unsure about.	Choose three moments, 1850 to 1877, at least one before, during, and after the war. Build a case file: three exhibits, timeline table, one "could it have gone otherwise," a verdict on the real point of no return, what the war settled and left open.
Length	700 to 1,000 words plus table	800 to 1,100 words plus table
Word skill practiced	Inserting and formatting a table	Inserting footnotes
Placement	End of Module 4, after the Quarter 3 exam	End of Module 7, after the Quarter 4 exam

Benchmarks. The skill benchmarks SS.8.A.1.2, SS.8.A.1.5, SS.8.A.1.6, and SS.8.A.1.7 are always addressed. Content benchmarks depend on the topic(s) the student picks; the crosswalk (Section 12) marks them

"choice." Because of that choice, a Capstone does not by itself satisfy every content benchmark of its quarter; the weekly items and the exam carry those.

Scoring. Use the Capstone Rubric (Section 10). A strong Quarter 3 dossier explains cause and effect with two named people and their arguments, and keeps the "what if" realistic. A strong Quarter 4 case file defends its verdict with at least two pieces of evidence and states the best argument for a different moment.

10. Rubric Guidance

Both rubrics use the same four criteria, so a student sees one standard all year: Understanding of the material; Quality of reasoning; Clarity and precision of expression; Intellectual honesty (naming what a source cannot show and where reasonable people disagree).

Rubric	Used on	Scale	Total
Primary Source Report rubric	The seven Report weeks (20, 24, 26, 29, 33, 35, 36)	4 criteria, 4 points each	16
Capstone Rubric	Both Capstones	4 criteria, 10 points each (Excellent 10, Proficient 8, Developing 6, Beginning 3, Not shown 0)	40

Rubric scores are entered in SpeedGrader. Reward honest limits over confident overreach: a student who says what the source cannot settle earns the fourth criterion.

11. Primary Sources and Discussion Guidance

- Sources. Read each primary-source page before teaching the week. The excerpt is what students answer from; the Critical Questions and Exercise questions are written to be answered from the excerpt plus the lessons.
- Look for contingency. The strongest student answers notice a moment when another outcome was possible and say what would have made it hard. Do not reward a march-to-freedom story that treats the outcome as inevitable.
- Discussion. The prompt asks for one specific claim and evidence, then a reply to a classmate. Accept either side if it is argued from the lessons and sources. A short "connect to today" prompt appears in the discussions for Weeks 19, 27, and 35.
- Sensitive material. Several weeks deal with slavery, removal, and war. The course teaches these because the standards require them and because they explain the sectional crisis; keep discussion tied to the sources and the events.

12. Standards Crosswalk

Source of truth: `03_Build/assessments/crosswalk.md`. This is generated from the lesson banners, the weekly assessment files, and the per-question tags in the exam keys. The benchmark text is quoted from the lesson banners (CPALMS 2100010, 2026 and Beyond version).

How items are tagged. Weekly items (Reading Quiz, Critical Questions, Exercise or Report, Discussion) carry the week's benchmark list. Exam questions are tagged one by one. Capstones are marked "choice" where the content depends on the student's topic. A benchmark counts as met when at least one student-submitted assessment addresses it.

12c. Checks

- All 52 benchmarks in the Spring set appear in at least one lesson banner and at least one student-submitted assessment.
- No lesson banner cites a code outside the Spring set.
- Banner versus weekly-item differences, all minor: Week 19 weekly items add SS.8.A.1.3 (the "connect to today" discussion prompt); Week 24 lessons add SS.8.A.5.2; Week 26 weekly items add SS.8.A.1.5; Week 32 lessons add SS.8.A.1.2.
- The week-to-benchmark mapping was proposed in the course reference and has not had a formal review. Treat it as working.
- EOC. The Florida U.S. History EOC assesses SS.912 benchmarks that this course does not teach. This manual indexes the Grade 7 benchmarks only and does not supply EOC practice items.
- Required instruction: the course meets Florida's required instruction on the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the republican form of government, U.S. history, and African American history. African American History content (SS.68.AA.2.x) is concentrated in this semester: Weeks 25, 28, 29, 32, 35, and 36.

13. Points, Weights, and What Is Not Yet Built

Points available

Category	Items	Points
Reading Quizzes	18 at 7	126
Critical Questions	18 at 10	180
Primary Source Exercises (11) and Reports (7)	11 at 10, 7 at 16	222
Discussions	18 at 10	180
Quarterly Exams	2 at 27	54
Capstones	2 at 40	80
Total		842

Intro and outro wrappers (36) are ungraded surveys worth zero points.

Weighting (adopted)

Canvas uses the same four-tier grading groups as the first semester: Tier 1, Student & Material, 55% (18 Reading Quizzes); Tier 2, Student & Community, 30% (18 Critical Questions, 11 Primary Source Exercises, 18 Discussions); Tier 3, Student & Teacher, 15% (7 Primary Source Reports, both Capstones, both Quarterly Exams); Tier 4, Ungraded Scaffolding, 0% (the intro and outro wrappers are ungraded surveys).

Because weights apply per group, raw point totals above do not set the grade. Teachers may change the weights for their own sections.

Not yet in the course

- VR Activities (five flagged weeks: 21, 23, 27, 30, 32, plus the lighter weekly sessions): not written. They will use platform-agnostic wording ("your VR headset," "your immersive session").
- Module maps exist for all eight modules in `03_Build/module-maps/` and `03_Build/output/Module-Maps-Spring.pdf`: teacher and print guides, never deployed to Canvas.
- Interactive widgets: none; all lessons are plain pages.
- Syllabi: not yet produced for this semester.
- Year-end exam or review lesson, and the optional lessons the course map flags as uncovered (westward migration, Mexican War fighting): undecided.

14. Live and On-Demand Sections

Content is identical in both sections; only logistics differ (meeting times, pacing, due dates). No student item uses day-of-week language, so the same Canvas modules serve both. Teachers may adjust due dates by section.

15. Teaching Notes: Approach and Wording

- Contingency. Keep asking what else could plausibly have happened and what would have made it hard.
- Avoid inevitability narratives, narratives driven only by material conditions, and attributing intentions the actors did not have.
- Wording. The course says "slave" (not "enslaved person") in the lessons, and describes the three-fifths clause as a compromise about counting population for representation and taxation, never as "three-fifths of a person."
- Secession order. Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, and Texas seceded before Fort Sumter; Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, and Arkansas after it; Maryland, Kentucky, Missouri, and Delaware did not secede.
- Manifest Destiny. Lesson 1.4 treats the idea, not the phrase (coined in 1845).
- Fact-checking. The Quarter 4 lessons were written without a source lookup; spot-check dates and figures before teaching them.
